BURNING SEVEN YEARS.

All Efforts to Put Out the Fire in the Dunbar Mine Have Failed.

Flames which have been consuming the coal in a portion of the Hill Farm mine at Dunbar for the past seven years have broken out in new places, and serious consequences are threatened.

The country for miles around Dunbar was startled by an awful explosion on June 16, 1890. It was in a part of the Hill Farm mine where 50 men were employed. The miners were entombed beyond all hope of recovery. The explosion ignited the coal, and soon that portion of the mine was a mass of flame. Work was started at once to cut off the burning portion from the remainder of the mine. All the approaches were walled up, and the mining experts declared that the flames must in a short time be smothered out. Their prediction was not verified, the fire continuing to burn month after month.

A small creek was turned into the mine, in the hope that it would quench the flames. This also failed, as did subsequent efforts to seal the mine. As soon as one opening was effectively closed the flames would force a way through a rocky crevice at some other point.

Thus it has gone on for seven years. Many thousands of tons of coal have been consumed, and many thousands of dollars have been expended by the Dunbar Furnace company in fruitless efforts to check the fire.

The flames have been spreading so rapidly recently that the officers of the company have been called from Philadelphia to consider propositions for further efforts at checking their spread. Mine Inspectors Connors, Louitt and Callahan, three of the most experienced experts in the region, are at work on the matter.

Meanwhile the sections of the mine that had been working have been closed, as the fire is running all through them. Flames are now shooting out of the mouth of the main slope to a great height.—N. Y. Sun.

A Persian Superstition.

The overland telegraph line, which connects England with her great Indian empire, passes through Persia, and has recently been subjected to an interruption of a quite serious character, due to the fanaticism of the populace. It seems that there has been a terrible drought, which the subjects of the shah, instead of attributing to Providence, ascribed, on the contrary, to the telegraph poles, and, above all, to the posts and signs of the survey department of the company. Accordingly, all the obnoxious poles, wires and survey signs were destroyed by a priest-led mob. Strangely enough, heavy rain fell immediately afterward, and now, in spite of the severest punishment inflicted by the Teheran government upon the ringleaders, the masses of the population throughout Persia are firmly convinced that telegraph and survey posts are productive of drought and inventions of the devil.—San Francisco Chronicle.

PHOTOGRAPHS THAT LIE.

Tricks of the Trade for Deceiving People.

The old saying that "photographs do not lie" must go to join the growing hosts of exploded notions. It may have been true when photography was new and undeveloped, but the fact remains that at the present time photographs may be and are made to lie with great frequency and facility. The methods by which this result is accomplished are more various and extensive than most persons suspect. Retouching in its simplest form, such as smoothing out deficiencies in the complexion, is well known to everybody, but it is not so generally understood that even the shape of the features may be altered by skillful work with the negative. Lines of figures are also frequently changed. The writer has seen and compared the original proof and finished picture of a well-known actress, famous for her beauty. In the proof hollows appear in the neck, and the lines of the shoulders, though graceful, leave something still to be desired in the way of perfect roundness and symmetry. The finished photograph shows a transformation. The hollows are gone, and the irregularities of the shoulder lines have become curves of perfect beauty. It is a lie, doubtless, but a pleasing and satisfactory one.

So much for the results of retouching. But there are tricks of posing which pervert the truth just as completely. By throwing an object or part of an object so far into the foreground or background that it is out of focus, it may be made to appear of a size wholly different from its real proportions. The most familiar instance of this trick is seen in the pictures of wonderful "catches" of fish. The honest fisherman holds the string out at arm's length in front of his body, so that, compared with himself, his trophies appear huge. A one-pound trout passes itself off gayly as a five-pounder, and other varieties gain in apparent size in the same satisfactory ratio.

When professional athletes, "strong men" or prize fighters come before the camera the same focusing device is employed. Hercules throws out his arms, folded, well in front of his chest, and in the picture the development of his biceps is almost terrifying in its proportions. If he desires to give prominence to the muscles of his shoulders and upper back, he stands sideways, so as to bring them nearest the lens, and by maneuvering and posing a little any part of the body which it is desired to emphasize may be made to appear well developed.—N. Y. Tribune.

NOSE AND TOES.

Physical Culture Says Pigeon-Toed Feet Have Crooked Noses.

A professor of physical culture announces that he has discovered an intimate connection between deformities of the nose and the position of the feet.

"You can tell a pigeon-toed person without looking at his feet or seeing him walk. The discovery was made by me in 1891 while teaching physical culture. I found a stubborn awkwardness in the movements of my pupils' feet. Looking for the cause, I found that many of them were pigeon-toed. In others one foot was correct and the other turned in.

"In teaching correct breathing, I had to investigate the condition of the nasal passages. Then I found that whenever the person was pigeon-toed in the right foot, the right nostril was stopped up or otherwise deformed. It was the same with the left foot or nostril. If both nostrils were defective both feet were pigeon-toed.

"At one time I examined 26 persons, and everyone of them was pigeon-toed in the left foot, with a corresponding defect in the left nostril.

"The person who has a whining or snuffling voice is usually pigeon-toed.

"Another discovery is that with the defective nostrils were found invariably stooped shoulders and hollow chests, the stoop and hollow always bearing a direct relation with the defect."—N. Y. Journal.

Happier Times for the Poles.

Czar Nicholas, on the occasion of his forthcoming visit to Warsaw, will receive from his Polish subjects a welcome that will, for the first time, be unanimous, spontaneous and sincere. Since his accession to the throne the old system of persecution seems banished by wiser and more humane counsels. Men of enlightened and liberal views, and frequently professing the Roman Catholic faith, have been lately appointed to the posts of governor and to other official places, and the emperor has just consented to the immediate nomination of Catholic bishops to seven Episcopal sees, which have remained vacant for many years, indeed, ever since the exile to Siberia of their former bishops.

Hope springs eternal in the human breast. That's why the pool of sin a pointment is always slopping over.

Owl go to over-crowding and bad ventilation, the air of the school room is often close and impure, and teachers and pupils frequently suffer from lung and throat troubles. To do such we would say, try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. For coughs, colds, weak lungs and bronchitis troubles, no other remedy can compare with it. Says A. C. Frost, Superintendent of Schools, Painesville, Ohio: "Having some knowledge of the efficacy of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, I have no hesitation in recommending it to all who suffer from coughs, lung troubles, etc." For sale by R. C. Hardwick.

An optimist is a man who is happy when he is miserable; a pessimist is a man who is miserable when he is happy.

It Saves the Croupy Children.

Seeview, Va.—We have a splendid sale on Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and our customers coming from far and near, speak of it in the highest terms. Many have said that their children would have died of croup if Chamberlain's Cough Remedy had not been given.—BELLAM & O'BRIEN, No. 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by R. C. Hardwick.

Glory seldom troubles a man while he lives, but after the funeral comes around and keeps the flies off his memory.

Cupid breaks his bow at the sight of a face full of pimples. How wretched, sunken eyes, and a sallow complexion will defy his best efforts. Beauty is more than skin deep. The skin is merely the surface on which is written in plain characters the condition of the body. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is good for the complexion because it makes the digestion strong and clears out impurities of all kinds. By increasing the ability to assimilate nutritious food, and by the infusion of its own ingredients it enriches the blood and so makes solid, healthy flesh. It cures diseases of the lungs, liver, stomach, bowels, skin and scalp, simply because all these diseases spring from the same cause—a disordered digestion and consequent impure blood.

Don't expect your ulcer to look clean and fresh this fall, just because you have had it in soak all summer.

A Cure for Bilious Colic.

Reservoir, Severe Co., Ga.—I have been subject to attacks of bilious colic for several years. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is the only sure relief. It acts like a charm. One dose of it gives relief when all other remedies fail.—G. D. SHARP. For sale by R. C. Hardwick.
